Description

Tangent Theta's TT315LRH 3-15x50mm Long Range Hunter is a professional-level riflelescope built for extreme accuracy at extreme range. The lenses are made premium glass, and its large 50mm objective lens and 32mm eyepiece deliver exceptional light transmission – this makes the TT315LRH perfect for applications in low light environments. One of the TT315LRH's more notable features is its Adjustment Isolation turrets. They feature an advanced design that prevents unintentional adjustments with a two-piece construction. The freely-turning fluted “isolation-cap” covers the actual turret and prevents the turret from moving. When the user pulls the isolation cap up, it exposes the turret and allows adjustments to be made. The elevation turret offers two full rotations of adjustment, and a revolution indicator on the top of the turret allows the user to instantly determine which rotation they are on. The turrets also feature a zero-stop function, which allows the user to quickly return to a known range zero and to be able to use that setting as a starting point to make further adjustments. Other features of the TT315LRH include an advanced illumination system with 11 brightness settings. Each setting features a tactile detent with additional detents between each setting. The illumination detectives between each setting, and a 6-hour automatic shutoff preserves battery life.

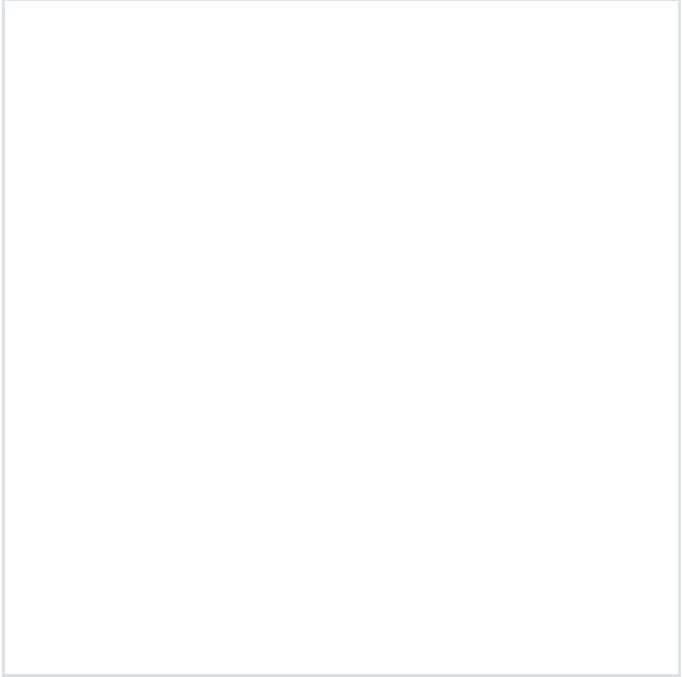

Features of the TT315LRH 3-15x50mm Professional Marksman:

- Zero-Stop Function – Allows the user to quickly return to a known range zero and to be able to use that setting as a starting point to make further adjustments
- Tool-Less Re-Zero Function – Allows the user to adjust the reading of the adjustments without changing the point of aim in the scope
- Illumination – 11 brightness settings. Each setting features a tactile detent with additional detents between each setting. The illumination detectives between each setting, and a 6-hour automatic shutoff preserves battery life
