Product Description

Lynn Thompson bought the first knife that custom maker, Lloyd Pendleton ever made in 1973. Now the two friends have collaborated to produce two of Lloyd's most popular knives, they call them the Lloyd Pendleton Hunter and Mini Hunter.

In fabricating these knives, Cold Steel has tried to duplicate Lloyd's work as accurately as possible. Both the Pendleton Hunter's hollow ground blade and the Mini Hunter's flat ground blade are honed to perfection. The handle's cross sections and contours match Lloyd's handmade knives exactly. For safety and durability, they have dispensed with leather in favor of Secure-Ex for the sheaths. This material won't rot or mildew and is far more resistant to cuts or punctures than leather.

Whether you're hunting the Big Five in Africa, Elk in Colorado, Moose and Bears in Alaska, or Whitetail deer in the North Forty, there aren't many things that will enhance your hunting experience more than carrying and using this superb custom-quality hunting knife. The Pendleton Custom Classic is a handsome reproduction of Lloyd Pendleton's Drop Point Hunter. It has a 3.5" blade with a sharp yet sturdy point for piercing and a truly razor-sharp edge with plenty of belly. Its hand-crafted polished blade is hollow ground from 5 mm thick AUS-10 blade construction. With its tapered full tang construction and extra stout "spine" it's virtually indestructible and, in a pinch, can double as a life-saving survival knife. Lloyd's guard and integral bolster have been exactly duplicated. Precision machined from stainless steel and skillfully polished, it features a single short quillon and a unique "thumb print" on the bolster to help protect the fingers and allow any number of grip options. The handle is also a faithful copy of Lloyd's original. Featuring a red fiber liner that accents the tapered tang, and twin contoured handle scales made of highly polished black linen micarta with six stainless retaining pins. A heavy pouch style sheath is included. It's made from brown cowhide with a thick welt and sturdy stitching and is wet molded to fit each knife. It covers two-thirds of the handle so your knife is held secure and won't "pop out" inadvertently.

Elegant/comfortable/suitable for EDC

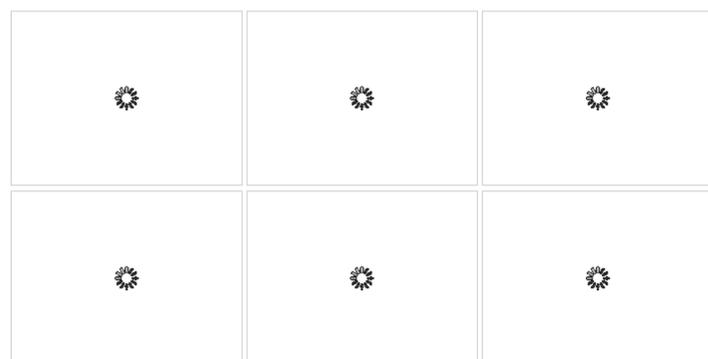

I think this is the most elegant knife made of Cold steel, and it is so comfortable. The ergonomics of the handle are very outstanding, the blade is thick but sharp, and the blade shape is suitable for practical cutting. Although its appearance is not as tactical as the SRK, but I think this is a knife that I really need in life, and its powerful but short size also allows me to carry EDC in my pocket. This is my favorite CS knife. I can't put it down. I bought it 10 years ago. I bought the VG1 version, and now I've bought the AUS-10 version!

Description mistakes

I've bought many knives from Cold Steel and been a customer for years. I've never seen a description so wrong ever. Is the width 5" or 0.375? Is the handle micarta or craex? Is the sheath leather or securex? So many discrepancies very unlike Cold Steel.

Pendleton Hunter

Really nice knife, will work great out in the field, has a real quality feel in hand. As I'm as much a collector as a user, was disappointed that the box was crushed and had been opened, but the knife was fine
